Dear Mr. Babich:

Congratulations! Your nomination for your project entitled “University of Victoria e-Procurement and e-Commerce Integration” has been selected as a winner in the 2003 Cost Effectiveness Through Government Awards, sponsored by the National Electronic Commerce Coordinating Council.

The National Electronic Commerce Coordinating Council proudly announces the Cost Effectiveness through e-government Awards for 2003. This NECCC award recognizes exemplary state and local e-government technology projects providing quantifiable revenue increases, cost decreases, and which cross multiple organization boundaries affecting multiple stakeholder groups.

An issue paper will profile nine Award of Merit Winners, selected by functional or program area. The committee selects one overall award winner that best exemplifies cost-effectiveness through e-government. Award areas include:

- Education
- Health and Medicaid
- Tax and Revenue
- Homeland Defense and Public Security
- Human Resources
- General Government
- Procurement
- Judicial
